Error Analysis Corder
There have been two schools of thought when it comes to errors analysis and philosophy, the first one, according to Corder (1967) linked the errors commitment with the teaching method arguing that if the teaching method was adequate, the errors would not be committed, the second school believed that we live in an imperfect world and that errors correction is something real and the applied ...

Corder (1987) explains the significance of learners’ errors in three different ways. 1. The first to the teacher in that they tell him, if he undertakes a systematic analysis, how far towards the goal the learner has progressed, and consequently what remains for him to learn. 2. Second, they provide to the researcher evidence of how language is learned or acquired, what strategies or ...
